The More You Know

When you flip a coin, physics, not probability, determines how it will land. Mathematician Persi Diaconis found that a coin is slightly more likely to land on the face that was up when you flipped it. The way a coin lands is not "random"; it's easy, with a little practice, to manipulate your coin flip so that it lands the way you want it. What's more, if you're spinning a coin, it's more likely to land tails up, since the heads side weighs slightly more. Here are some more "facts" you've always believed that are actually.

Jiffy is an actual unit of time. Though the English language has adopted it to mean "a short amount of time," it actually is a scientific term. In the physics world, a "jiffy" is the time it takes light to travel a centimeter in a vacuum or around 33.4 picoseconds. (A "picosecond," meanwhile, is a trillionth of a second.)
